Chancellor's Welcome

Tonight is a time for celebration as we recognise and congratulate the recipients of a wide-range of donor-funded scholarships, grants and prizes at the University of South Australia and pay tribute to our dedicated scholarship supporters for their commitment to higher education.

The scholarships and grants program at UniSA provides assistance to talented students to help them achieve their true potential. While scholarships and grants may be the difference many financially constrained students need to access and maintain higher education, these awards provide much more than financial assistance.

They benefit students by rewarding their hard work and dedication, boosting their motivation and self-confidence and enhancing their employability through work experience programs and international study opportunities.

I wish to acknowledge our wonderful donors and supporters for your valuable assistance that enables the extension of programs and services across the University. Your support underpins our goals around not only scholarship, but participation, equity and diversity.

Thanks to your generosity, we have been able to support disadvantaged students as well as students with high academic potential, by helping to ease the financial load while they are studying so they can focus on what is important.

Congratulations to all the award recipients being recognised tonight and thank you to our donors who make it possible for our students to reach further and aspire to be greater, and for that we are truly grateful.

Ms Pauline Carr

Chancellor

Vice Chancellor's Welcome

There are many parts to a modern university, but at the University of South Australia two things underpin everything we do – a commitment to excellence and a determination to give everyone the very best chance to reach their potential.

There is no better example of this than our scholarships and grants program, which offers help to students with exceptional ability who through an array of cultural, geographical and socio-economic circumstances might otherwise not have the opportunity to go to university.

That help takes many forms. It is often financial, of course, but there is also much to be gained from offering the opportunity to gain work experience, to travel, to make connections, or simply to find a mentor who can guide, advise and assist as a person finds his or her own path in life.

To make this possible, I am deeply indebted to our academic and professional staff, to the friends of the University who give of their time, and in particular to a dedicated group of corporate and private donors who share our vision.

For all of us the reward is the same – seeing the students we've helped go on to take their professional places in society and make a real difference to their communities. I hope you will enjoy meeting each other this evening as we celebrate the gift that philanthropy gives us all.

Professor David G. Lloyd

Vice Chancellor and President

Aboriginal Pathway Program Prize

The Aboriginal Pathway Program Prize has been established by Jo and Max Duldig, passionate supporters of the Gavin Wanganeen Aboriginal Scholarship who have extended their support to a named prize to reward and encourage Aboriginal Pathway Program (APP) students.

Operated by UniSA College, the APP is an 18 month pathway program that supports Aboriginal students with no previous qualifications to prepare for university study.

The program is delivered at five locations: Metropolitan Adelaide (City West campus), Ceduna, Mount Gambier, Port Lincoln and Whyalla, with additional mentoring and support provided by local tutors. Upon completion, graduates can use their qualification to apply for competitive entry into a UniSA undergraduate degree.

The prize is awarded to students undertaking the APP in Adelaide or Mount Gambier, and who have completed their first year of study and achieved the highest cumulative grade point average at the end of the academic year. It acknowledges the hard work and dedication made by the students and motivates them to build on the skills they need to be successful at tertiary level.

Richard Oertel Memorial Mathematics Grant

The Richard Oertel Memorial Mathematics Grant has been established by Bronwyn Ellis, in honour of her late husband Dr Richard Oertel who lectured in mathematics at UniSA's Whyalla Campus and previously at Mawson Lakes (formerly The Levels). The grant is a perpetual award that will recognise and reward talented UniSA mathematics students for many years to come.

In 1975, Richard completed his PhD, where he developed a model for understanding the hydrodynamics experienced by container ships which had a small draft compared with their length. Following this, he worked at the Australian Bureau of Statistics in IT performing programming tasks associated with the processing of census and household survey data.

In 1980, Richard left the ABS to take up a systems job at the University of Adelaide in the Barr Smith Library. The University was developing its own online library systems and was one of the first university libraries to move away from manual processing. He eventually moved to the South Australian Institute of Technology in 1983 in a lectureship position.

Richard was an excellent teacher who was highly regarded by his students and peers in both information technology and mathematics. He finished lecturing in 1996.

The grant is available to students who are enrolled full-time in the second or third year of a Bachelor of Mathematics program at UniSA.

Finn Family Refugee Study Grant

The Finn Family Refugee Study Grant has been kindly provided by the Finn Family.

The grant was offered for the first time in 2018 and is awarded to a student from a refugee background who is commencing study with the University of South Australia. The grant is available to students commencing a program of study with UniSA College or an undergraduate degree and is designed to assist recipients meet the costs associated with study including textbooks, travel, computing equipment or other related expenses.

"We are very proud to play a part in enabling a student from a refugee background to attend UniSA in the hope that they will be able to benefit in the same way that we have from the transformational experience provided by tertiary education. While we are pleased that our modest level of support attracted 50 applications it points out to us that there is much more to do and we would encourage others to also consider supporting this group that is underrepresented in terms of participation at university."

Terri and Paul Finn

Rotary Club of the Barossa Valley Foundation Scholarship

Aspiring students from the Barossa Valley region who find it difficult to afford to go to university can look to their local Rotary Club for support.

Rotary is a worldwide organisation of business and professional leaders that provides humanitarian services, encourages high ethical standards in all vocations, and helps build goodwill and peace in the world. Worldwide, Rotary has about 32,000 clubs and 1.2 million members in more than 200 countries and geographical areas.

In 2012, the Rotary Club of the Barossa Valley decided that one way they could help to fulfil their mission was to support a scholarship at the University of South Australia.

The Rotary Club of the Barossa Valley Foundation Scholarship is available to high achieving students from the Barossa or Eden Valley regions who are recent school leavers and are enrolled full-time in a University of South Australia undergraduate degree.

“The scholarship is a way for the club to show support and pride in young aspiring members of our community and we look forward to awarding it each year.”

John Semmler, Trustee of the Barossa Valley Foundation Scholarship

Sandhu International Student Support Grant

The Sandhu International Student Support Grant honours the memory of Nihal Singh Sandhu and Mangal Singh Sandhu who believed in the power of education to change lives.

Prabjit Sandhu is a University of South Australia employee who works with students at the Whyalla Campus, and in 2019 he established a grant in his family name to support international students.

After donating to UniSA's Pridham Hall initiative through the workplace giving program, Prabjit felt motivated to continue to help others through education and established the Sandhu International Student Support Grant.

The grant is awarded to an international student who has successfully completed the first year of their undergraduate or postgraduate studies and demonstrates strong community engagement.

It is designed to help passionate students meet the ongoing costs associated with study including textbooks, travel costs and computing equipment, and enables the student to focus on their studies.

Prabjit believes universities play a key role in preparing graduates to move into society to achieve bigger and better things, and the UniSA workplace giving program is an easy way to support education.

"From my own experiences, I have seen some international students struggle while studying in Australia and I felt compelled to help these well-deserving students by setting up a grant."

Prabjit Sandhu

Zonta Club of Adelaide Community Development Grant

As part of a global organisation empowering women worldwide, members of the Zonta Club of Adelaide are committed to supporting projects that make a positive difference to women's lives.

The Zonta Club of Adelaide Community Development Grant assists female UniSA students who are undertaking community development projects that help women and girls in Australia or overseas.

Offered for the first time in 2019, the $3,000 grant supports the costs involved in undertaking the community development project, including materials, travel, and data collection.

The grant aligns with the Zonta Club's key objective to advance the status of women and women's human rights through service and advocacy. Preference may be given to students applying to do a project in an Aboriginal or Torres Strait Islander community, South-East Asia or a Pacific Island nation.

Wattle Range Council UniSA Study Grant

Wattle Range Council in the Limestone Coast of South Australia is one of the most economically diverse Local Government regions in South Australia, stretching from the sea to the Victorian border.

The Wattle Range Council UniSA Study Grant encourages and supports talented students from the Wattle Range Council area as they commence a UniSA undergraduate degree program. The grant is awarded to students who resided in the Wattle Range Council area during Year 12, and two grants are available each year for four years from 2019; one for a student relocating to Adelaide to study at a UniSA city campus and one for a student located at the UniSA Mount Gambier campus.

The grant is designed to assist with the cost of undertaking university study including relocation costs, travel expenses, text books and the purchase of computer hardware and software.

"UniSA has a strong relationship with Wattle Range Council, and we are aware of the Council's commitment to enhancing the educational opportunities for its residents...we are very appreciative of this initiative by the Council."

Ian McKay, Regional Manager: Mount Gambier, UniSA

"It is in the interests of the entire region to encourage our young people to undertake higher education."

Des Noll, Wattle Range Council Mayor

Sheila Bailey Prizes

Sheila Bailey and the University of South Australia have a special relationship. Sheila works at the University, her husband, son, sister and daughter-in-law are all University of South Australia alumni and she has become one of our most generous staff donors.

In 1997, Sheila began working for the University in the Alumni Office. Through her role as Advancement Executive (Alumni), Sheila has seen first-hand the huge difference that scholarships, grants and prizes make to students.

For many years she supported the University of South Australia's Annual Appeal and when the University introduced an option for staff to make donations through regular payroll deductions she used the opportunity to increase her giving.

In 2008 Sheila created the Sheila Bailey Early Childhood Education Prize to help others realise their teaching ambitions, and in 2009 created the Sheila Bailey Nursing and Midwifery Prize in honour of her mother's nursing career. After receiving expert physiotherapy from a University of South Australia trained physiotherapist, she was inspired to add the Sheila Bailey Physiotherapy Prize. In 2018, she added the Sheila Bailey Architecture Prize to her growing philanthropic offering.

"Thank you for your generosity and for awarding me the prize. It makes me happy to know that people recognise the difficulties of relocating to the city to study, and it has motivated me to do the best that I can. Receiving the prize has helped to cover the expenses that come along with university and placement like textbooks and uniforms."

2018 prize recipient, Kayla Fielke

St Andrew's Hospital Nursing Experiential Learning Grant

Simply put, 'experiential learning' is learning through experience. For nursing students, this is an essential part of their university education. However, it often comes at a cost. Nursing students have several placements of long duration in the third year of their degree, which may require them to travel long distances and to stay in different locations, or may prevent them from working part-time.

St Andrew's Hospital understands the demands nurses face both as students and as professionals. These grants are designed to take the financial concerns out of the professional placement process so the student is better equipped with the knowledge and experience to one day practise in their chosen field.

St Andrew's Hospital has provided medical and surgical excellence to South Australians for more than 80 years and is now Australia's largest standalone independent private hospital and is recognised nationally as a centre of excellence.

St Andrew's is a 207-bed private, surgical hospital situated opposite Adelaide's south parklands, with nine state-of-the-art operating theatres, an 18-bed critical care unit, an emergency department plus two procedure rooms, an angiography suite, a day patient suite, a stunning new offsite chemotherapy suite and arguably South Australia's most comprehensive private cancer-care facility.

The Hospital is a long-time supporter of the University of South Australia and its students, offering scholarships and grants since 2002. Many of the University's nursing students go to St Andrew's for their professional placement.

"You have chosen a career in a truly wonderful profession. I would encourage you to go out there and make a difference."

Mr Stephen Walker, CEO, St Andrew's Hospital

Shirley Harper Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Scholarship in Education

The late Shirley Harper was an early childhood teacher, and her son and daughter-in-law, Denis Harper and Janet Callen, established the scholarship in 2005 to honour her memory and life's work in education.

The scholarship is open to Aboriginal students who are recognised in their community and enrolled full-time in the Bachelor of Education (Early Childhood, Primary or Primary and Middle streams).

"Studying at UniSA meant I had to relocate from my family two and a half hours north of Adelaide to the city. Receiving your scholarship helped to make my transition much easier, which meant that I could completely focus on my studies. I greatly appreciate your generosity in supporting myself and the other previous recipients. I enjoyed studying and learning about children as much as I love teaching now that I have graduated!"

Ian D. McLachlan Memorial Grant

The Ian D. McLachlan Memorial Grant honours Ian's life and the contribution he made to the University and the wider South Australian community. Ian McLachlan (1945-2011) was an accountant who enjoyed a successful career after establishing and operating his own accounting practices, along with a short spell working for Pricewaterhouse. Ian was a highly valued member of the University governance team for many years, during which he made many important and generous contributions of his time and expertise. He joined the University's Finance Committee in 1998 and the Council in 2000, continuing in both roles until his death. He was also Presiding Officer of the Audit and Risk Management Committee and a Director of the University's technology commercialisation company ITEK.

Outside of his University and work commitments, Ian was also a Director of the Port Adelaide Football Club from 1992-2005, with the club drawing greatly on his expertise and resources to obtain its AFL licence.

As a young university student, Ian received a scholarship to help him fund his studies, and he always appreciated and acknowledged the difference that this initial support made to his life. Thus, it is fitting that the University of South Australia established the Ian D. McLachlan Memorial Grant to assist financially disadvantaged commerce students as a way to commemorate and honour Ian's contributions to university governance. A number of Ian's friends also made in-memoriam donations to this scholarship fund.

The grant is available to final-year students enrolled in Bachelor of Commerce programs.

Gould Experimental Science Grant

At the heart of good science is the experiment and at the heart of the experiment is excellent scientific training. The Gould Experimental Science Grant was established in 2010 with a personal gift from former Chancellor of the University of South Australia, Dr Ian Gould AM, and his wife Christine.

The grant is designed to encourage research students to undertake 'hands on' research through experimental work, and recognises early-career researchers and the value of applying proper scientific method to their research.

The grant supports the recipient's costs of experimental research data collection and analysis.

"We believe that the provision of scholarships and prizes to students gives the extra encouragement sometimes needed to push learning and research into application. We established the Gould Experimental Science Grant to provide more than just funding. We wanted to offer students the opportunity to forge a career in their area of passion, and thus make a difference for future generations by creating new data and information through experimentation."

Norton Jackson Material Science and Engineering Medal

The Norton Jackson Material Science and Engineering Medal was established in 2011 by the late Dr Norton Jackson AM.

Norton Jackson had a remarkable and varied life and career, both internationally and locally. During Norton's long and distinguished career, he worked as Chief Metallurgist at the SA Department of Mines, spent 20 years looking after American Cyanamid Company's operations in Asia, Europe and Africa while mostly based in the United States, and was Managing Director of the Australian Mineral Development Laboratories in Adelaide, tripling the company's productivity during his five years at the helm.

After his 'retirement' at the age of 63, Norton spent the next 30 years helping direct the growth and prosperity of more than a dozen mining, fertilizer and chemical companies, through board memberships and directorships.

Norton's qualifications included Diplomas in Applied Science and Mining from the South Australian School of Mines (a founding institution of the University of South Australia).

In his 70s, Norton reconnected with the University of South Australia, becoming a dear friend and supporter. He was a Member of the University's Council from 1995 to 1998 and also a Member of the Development Board for several years. He was made a Fellow of the University of South Australia in 1999 and awarded an Honorary Doctorate in 2006. In 2011, he established the prestigious Norton Jackson Material Science and Engineering Medal.

The medal is awarded annually to the PhD graduate or graduand from the University of South Australia's Future Industries Institute, now home to the former Ian Wark Research Institute, who has demonstrated the most potential or real application of research in industry.

"I was extremely fortunate to receive a scholarship to attend the School of Mines and Industry, an antecedent of the University of South Australia. I later went on to complete a Bachelor of Engineering in Metallurgy and was awarded the prestigious Klug Medal for the 'top metallurgist of the year'. This award had a powerful influence on my career and is something I would like to replicate for other graduates to aspire to."

The late Dr Norton Jackson AM

Goodes O'Loughlin UniSA GO Scholarship

In 2016, the University received a generous donation from the Government of South Australia to provide a scholarship supporting high-achieving Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander students enrolled in a health or fitness related undergraduate degree program. The State Government donation funds a Goodes O'Loughlin UniSA GO Scholarship every year in perpetuity.

The GO Foundation was founded by Adam Goodes and Michael O'Loughlin and creates educational opportunities for Aboriginal youth through a strong network of collaboration with corporate Australia, schools, universities and other partners.

The recipients have the opportunity to engage with the GO Foundation and receive a range of mentoring, networking and career development opportunities.

"The GO Foundation wants to see more and more Indigenous students at universities throughout Australia. We are thrilled to partner with UniSA, one of Australia's leading universities, to provide these opportunities in Adelaide."

Adam Goodes

"Adam and I both grew up in Adelaide so we are both so pleased that we can offer a GO scholarship at UniSA. South Australia gave us the opportunities that led us to where we are today so it's great we can give back in some small way."

Michael O'Loughlin

2019 scholarship recipient, Jordan Trevorrow

Gladys Elphick Memorial Scholarship

In 2005 an anonymous donor provided a substantial bequest to the University of South Australia to establish the Gladys Elphick Memorial Scholarship – to support Aboriginal students undertaking studies within the School of Health Sciences.

Gladys Elphick MBE was a highly respected member of the local Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander community in South Australia, better known to the Aboriginal community as 'Auntie Glad'.

A Kurna woman, Gladys Elphick was brought up on the Point Pearce Reserve. Her lifelong work against discrimination and exploitation of Indigenous people included the formation of the Aboriginal Women's Council, a legal aid service and the Aboriginal Community Centre in Adelaide.

She also helped to establish the first Aboriginal community-controlled health service in the Adelaide region, which continues on today in the form of Nunkuwarrin Yunti of SA Inc.

Gladys was appointed a Member of the Order of the British Empire in 1971 for services to the Aboriginal Community. In 1984 she was named South Australian Aboriginal of the Year.

"Receiving the Gladys Elphick Memorial Scholarship was an honour. The financial assistance was of great benefit, allowing me to cut back a few hours of work each week, which gave me the opportunity to put a stronger focus on my study. I was also able to purchase a laptop for home which has made life a lot easier since. Gladys Elphick is a great role model especially for Indigenous women like myself and I am very proud to say I held a scholarship in her name."

Aborigines Advancement League Grant

A commitment to Aboriginal education and support of Aboriginal leaders in the community is a key element in both the founding legislation and ongoing activities of the University of South Australia.

The Aborigines Advancement League Grant was established in 1994 to advance the education of Aboriginal postgraduate students. The grants were made possible through a Deed of Gift from the Aborigines Advancement League to the University of South Australia and Flinders University.

In addition to the grants, the gift established the biennial Duguid Memorial Lecture, held in honour of Dr Charles Duguid OBE and Mrs Phyllis Duguid OAM. Dr Duguid and his wife attracted national and international headlines in the 1930s due to their tireless campaigning for the rights of Aboriginal people.

Charles Duguid also founded the South Australian Aborigines Advancement League in 1939 and presided over it for many years. The League initially worked to establish and maintain a hostel for young Aboriginal people coming to Adelaide to gain an education. It also campaigned for legislative reforms and fairer work policies for Aboriginal people, and hosted the inaugural meeting of the Federal Council for Aboriginal Advancement in 1958.

Alternating between the University of South Australia and Flinders University, the Duguid Memorial Lectures strengthen harmonious relationships between Aboriginal and non-Aboriginal communities.

Gavin Wanganeen Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Scholarships

Brownlow Medallist, premiership player, five-time All-Australian, Port Power Best and Fairest, and first Indigenous AFL Life Member, Gavin Wanganeen was a brilliant AFL player, who is genuinely admired by all who love the game. More than that, he has become a role model for Aboriginal youth throughout the country, something he takes very seriously. That is why Gavin lent his patronage and encouragement to a scholarship set up by the University of South Australia to help Aboriginal students achieve their higher education goals.

Since its establishment in 2004, 40 students have benefited from this life-changing initiative. The University would like to thank the nearly 600 individuals and organisations who have generously donated money for this scholarship.

We are delighted that we have been able to offer two additional scholarships to final year students since 2013 thanks to the generosity of the Department of Environment and Water and the Department of Innovation and Skills.

"Football has given me some wonderful opportunities in my life, a strong sense of achievement and an understanding that role models can make a difference to people's lives. I believe Aboriginal kids need a range of role models – some in sport but also, teachers, business leaders, nurses, researchers and others. The Gavin Wanganeen Aboriginal Scholarship aims to assist more Aboriginal students to attend university so they can contribute by becoming leaders in Australia and good examples for Aboriginal children across the country."

Gavin Walkley was a prominent South Australian architect, town planner and academic, who passed away in 2005. Born in North Adelaide in 1911, Gavin studied engineering and served in WWII before returning home to build his career as an architect and town planner.

He was appointed Head of UniSA's antecedent Louis Laybourne Smith School of Architecture in 1951, and helped establish the first specialised postgraduate planning course in Australia. He led the School for 25 years, during which time he greatly expanded the range of design and planning education courses on offer, and helped to pioneer courses in building technology and landscape/interior design. He was also an Associate Professor and lecturer in social work at the University of South Australia from 1987 to 2000.

Ian Cox was instrumental in a comprehensive reform of juvenile justice and made a significant contribution to the South Australian community through the government's program of support for those experiencing disadvantage. He also pioneered new ways of working with the families of children with disabilities, advocating for the rights of parents to their own information and to have their voices heard in professional discussions about their children.

Families SA generously provide $10,000 a year for the scholarship, and the School of Psychology, Social Work and Social Policy pays the recipient's fees in the year they receive the scholarship.

Irene and David Davy Scholarship for Advancement of Aboriginal Education

The Irene and David Davy Scholarship is one of the University of South Australia's longest running scholarships, and over 30 talented Aboriginal students have received the scholarship since its establishment in 2000.

The scholarship, open to Aboriginal students in the final year of an undergraduate program or an Honours year, came about through a bequest by Irene and David Davy, two South Australians whose own limited formal education never stopped them from encouraging others to follow their academic goals.

David's niece, Margaret Davy AM studied medicine at a time when very few women entered the course, and even less came from working class families. They were proud of her achievements, giving unstinting praise. Irene's niece, Judy Moffatt was supported in her dream to become a nurse, and was the first Aboriginal nurse to graduate from Lyell McEwin Hospital. Two other sisters, Sharon and Kerry also graduated from there. All these nieces have achieved in their chosen professions and become role models. They are all grateful for the emotional support and encouragement from their aunt and uncle.

Irene and David Davy were people who planned for the future – they were practical, hardworking and determined to make the most of the opportunities presented to them. They believed support and encouragement, combined with access to education, could change the lives of young people, increasing their opportunities, confidence and self-esteem.

Through the development of the scholarship, members of the Davy family have successfully continued Irene and David's legacy.

"This scholarship was a remarkable milestone to receive in my final year of undergraduate studies in Clinical Exercise Physiology not only financially but also culturally. As a proud Kaurna woman, I believe I can help make a difference in addressing the health needs of our people and hope that one day my commitment as an Exercise Physiologist in the community will contribute to closing the gap in Indigenous health outcomes."

Mavis and Moira Grant

The Mavis and Moira Grant was established by The Honourable John Hill and Andrea Dale, who wanted to honour their mothers and the important role they played in each of their families.

Mavis and Moira lived through the Great Depression era and as such did not have access to the level of education that they deserved.

As a fitting tribute to these two strong women, John and Andrea have made a generous gift to fund the Mavis and Moira Grant in perpetuity to support female university students who are enrolled in a program area that supports child protection or vulnerable babies and/or pre-school age children.

The grant is awarded to a female student undertaking her final or honours year of an undergraduate program in the field of Social Work, Psychological Science, Psychology or Sociology.

As well as honouring Mavis and Moira the grant aims to foster the development of skills in a social services profession that has positive impact on the lives of vulnerable and at risk babies and children.

UniSA College Refugee Advancement Grant

The UniSA College Refugee Advancement Grant is awarded to a student from a refugee background studying at UniSA College to enable their goal of progressing to an undergraduate degree at UniSA.

The grant has been funded through workplace giving contributions from several staff from UniSA's Advancement Services Unit. The Advancement Services team have firsthand knowledge of the power of scholarships and the positive impact this support can have for disadvantaged students.

Staff members were motivated to pool resources and donate to this cause in recognition of the challenges faced by refugee students in obtaining a university qualification, and to honour the contributions that refugees make to the cultural, economic and community life of South Australia.

Many young refugees have witnessed or experienced conflict and trauma; they often struggle financially and have wider family commitments both here and in their home countries; and English is their second language, so settling in their new life in Australia can be challenging.

The UniSA College Refugee Advancement Grant is designed to provide financial relief to help students prepare for university as well as adjust to a new culture, customs and language.

"Through our work we have the privilege of meeting many students with a refugee background and our team is constantly inspired by their courage, passion and commitment to achieving their goals and contributing to the Australian community. We are thrilled to support such a worthy cause."

Maurice de Rohan International Scholarship

The Maurice de Rohan International Scholarship is the legacy of one of South Australia's greatest ambassadors, the late Maurice de Rohan AO OBE.

As the South Australian Agent General in London from 1998 to 2006, Maurice was committed to the development of a strong relationship between South Australia and the United Kingdom. This scholarship, reflecting Maurice's passion and achievements, is designed to enable others to carry on his work.

Maurice was a Civil Engineering graduate from one of the University of South Australia's foundation institutions – the South Australian Institute of Technology. Over the years he contributed significantly to the University's scholarship campaigns and looked after South Australian alumni in the UK. In recognition of his many contributions, the University awarded him an Honorary Doctorate in 2003.

Maurice was awarded an OBE in 1992 for services to maritime safety, a Centenary Medal in 2003, and was presented with the Order of Australia by the Australian High Commissioner in 2006 only hours before he passed away.

Following his death, the de Rohan family wished to establish this scholarship in recognition of Maurice's passion for building relationships between nations.

An international fundraising effort and funds from the University mean this scholarship can be offered each year in perpetuity.

A former recipient of the scholarship, Ivana Stankov, carried out research to better understand the relationship between built environments and heart disease risk.

"The Maurice de Rohan International Scholarship has given me the opportunity to spend a concentrated period of time learning from leading researchers within my field. This experience has also broadened my understanding of both academic and policy based institutions in the US and how they compare to those in Australia. Having the opportunity to present and discuss my work with researchers at the Brookings Institution was definitely a highlight."

University of South Australia Rural Reconnect Relocation Scholarship and Rural Reconnect Grant

One of the most significant obstacles to getting a university degree for rural and isolated students is the financial cost of relocating. Living expenses can actually double the cost of a degree for students who have to move to the city rather than continue to live at home.

To ensure more rural students receive a university education, the University of South Australia Rural Reconnect Relocation Scholarship was established as part of the Rural Reconnect Project.

The Rural Reconnect Grant, another element of the Rural Reconnect Project, is designed to encourage rural and remote students to undertake their professional experience placements within their own (or similar) communities – to help ‘give back’ and ensure that their communities benefit from their education.

“There are no words to describe how thankful I am for your financial support of my university studies this year. This scholarship shows me that there are people who care about my tertiary education, and who want to see me succeed in my field. This encouragement has given me such a drive to do well in my studies, so that I can contribute positively to society in the future.”

Pank Family Scholarships and Grants

The Panks are a remarkable family. Not only have they worked hard to create their success, but they have chosen to share the fruits of their efforts with those who are less fortunate. Since 1996 the Pank family's generous contributions to the University of South Australia have helped almost 200 students gain a tertiary education.

Dr David Pank AM was an optometrist who later became Director, Managing Director and Chairman of Laubman and Pank. He was a significant contributor to the business community in South Australia and played a critical role in establishing the South Australian College of Advanced Education, the University of South Australia's largest founding institution.

In recognition of David Pank's commitment to higher education and the University of South Australia, he was awarded an Honorary Doctorate in 1995.

Dr Pank established the Pank/University of South Australia Prize for Social Innovation and Enterprise in 2003 and his wife, Margaret, later funded the Margaret E Pank Nursing Scholarship.

Dr Pank passed away in January 2004, and Mrs Pank in September 2007. In addition, to the Pank/University of South Australia Prize for Social Innovation and Enterprise and the Margaret E Pank Nursing Scholarship, the Pank Family support students at the University of South Australia through the:

- David Pank Northern Areas High Achiever Scholarship
- David Pank Education Scholarship
- David Pank Northern Areas Education Placement Grant
- David Pank Undergraduate Scholarship
- David Pank UniSA College Diploma Scholarship
- David Pank UniSA College Scholarship
- Margaret E Pank First Year Nursing Grant

The Pank Family have also established encouragement prizes for each of their scholarships to recognise promising students and academic excellence.

Their pledge to help make tertiary education more accessible to young South Australians has lived on through their children, David Pank, Jane Newland, Susan Hunt and Robbie Baxter.

"Our aim is to help those whose present financial situation makes their tertiary education a distant or perhaps unachievable goal."

Resthaven Undergraduate Scholarships

Established in 1935, Resthaven is an aged care community service associated with the Uniting Church in South Australia.

Each year, Resthaven shares the lives and wisdom of more than 10,000 older people and their carers, supporting them with high quality, responsive community and residential aged care services.

As a major and valued donor to the University since 2010, Resthaven supports a suite of scholarships and grants in order to give back to the South Australian community.

Resthaven scholarships deliver lasting benefits by affirming the importance of working in the aged care sector and raising awareness of aged care as a career path for graduating nurses and allied health professionals. The scholarships support our students to become leading professionals who deliver quality care to older people – now and in the future.

“Resthaven considers our investment in the scholarships an important contribution to the Australian community. With our ageing society, developing a future aged care workforce is vital. Supporting the students who will become the highly professional aged care nursing and allied health practitioners of the future benefits us all.”

Don Hawke Memorial Scholarship and Pearce Family Transition Grant

The Pearce family established the Don Hawke Memorial Scholarship in honour and memory of Jean's late brother who, through circumstance, was never able to attend university despite his aspirations. The scholarship provides $25,000 a year for up to five years to cover living and study costs for the duration of the recipient's study.

Tom and Jean's interest in improving equitable access for regional and remote students to fulfil their higher education ambitions was behind the establishment of the Pearce Family Transition Grants. These grants are designed to assist students from rural locations who have commenced an Education degree program at UniSA.

Since Jean's death in 2009, the Pearce family have continued to support a wide range of causes including the arts, education, health, the environment and overseas development.

"We believe in sharing and we get much more joy out of giving than we could have ever imagined."

The late Jean Pearce
